BACKGROUND ON PIZZA TIME THEATRE

The concept for Pizza Time Theatre was the brainchild of Nolan K. Bushnell, a pioneer in the video games industry. The first location, planned as a prototype, opened in San Jose, California, in May, 1977.

During its first year of operation, Pizza Time Theatre was a division of ATARI, a company founded by Bushnell in 1972, which is now a wholly owned subsidiary of Warner Communications. In June, 1978, Bushnell purchased all assets and rights from ATARI and formed Pizza Time Theatre as a California corporation.

Nolan Bushnell is Chairman of the Board, while retaining a similar position with ATARI, Inc. Gene N. Landrum serves as President and Chief Operating Officer of the company.

Prior to founding ATARI, Bushnell was an engineer with Ampex Corporation in its Advanced Technology Division. He holds a B.S.E.E. from the University of Utah.

Landrum began his sales and marketing career with Singer-Friden, progressing from salesman to National Sales Manager. Gene received his B.A. from Tulane University and studied for his M.B.A. at West Virginia University. Most recently he served as General Manager of the Consumer Products Division of National Semiconductor.

Other officers include Donald K. Marks, Director of Franchising; Michael M. Hatcher, Director of Entertainment; Gregory J. Tilden, Director of Technical Operations; and Raymond W. Davis, Director of Engineering.

In addition to the first Pizza Time Theatre, located at 370 Winchester Boulevard in San Jose, and the just-opened Theatre at 1371 Kooser Road, San Jose, which is the country's largest pizza parlor, the company will open a third unit in Concord's the Willows next March and a fourth one in Southern California in June. Franchises for Mann County and the San Joaquin Valley are being considered. Simultaneously, a nationwide program will be instituted for key geographical areas.

Corporate headquarters are located at 455 North Bernardo Avenue, Suite A, in Mountain View, California 94043. The phone number there is (415) 968-3861.
